

Google's 'castle and moat' strategy is data hegemony: CCI tells NCLAT

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA
New Delhi, March 16

FAIR TRADE REGULATORY CCI on Thursday alleged that Google has created a digital data hegemony and called for a market space with "free, fair and open competition".

Concluding the arguments of the Competition Commission of India (CCI) before the appellate tribunal NCLAT in the Google matter, Additional Solicitor General N Venkataraman said a market with greater freedom for all players would be in total sync with principles of free competition rather than the 'walled garden' approach of the internet major.

On October 20 last year, the CCI slapped a penalty of ₹1,337.76 crore on Google for anti-competitive practices in relation to Android mobile devices. The regulator had also ordered the internet major to cease and desist from various unfair business practices.

This ruling has been challenged before the National Company Law Appellate Tribunal (NCLAT).

On Thursday, Venkataraman submitted that Google had used its money-spinning search engine as the 'castle' and the rest of the other apps to play the defensive role of 'moat'. This 'castle and moat' strategy is data hegemony, which means a big market player tends to get bigger and bigger while a small entrant struggles to attain a critical mass of users and user data.

Japan PM to visit India next week, outline plan for 'open' Indo-Pacific

The Japanese Prime Minister will be in India on March 20-21

SHUBHAJIT ROY
New Delhi, March 16

SIXTEEN YEARS AFTER Japan's then Prime Minister Shinzo Abe gave his seminal speech, "The Confluence of Two Seas", in the Indian Parliament, his successor, Fumio Kishida, an Abe loyalist, is set to announce a new plan for a "free and open" Indo-Pacific during his India visit next week.

Kishida, who will be in India on March 20-21, is set to make the announcement in a speech organised by the Indian Council for World Affairs, an Indian government-funded think-tank.

His plan is expected to include the provision of non-military equipment and infrastructure support for countries in the Indo-Pacific region that have been facing threats from Beijing's belligerence in the region, including the military build-up in the South China Sea.

By choosing Delhi to announce the new plan, Kishida is signalling India's importance. A former foreign minister, Kishida is well aware of India's centrality in the strategy against China's aggression in the region.

Officials said this will place India at the centre of the new Japanese government's plan, in continuity with Abe's approach.

This will be Kishida's second visit in a year - he came to New Delhi for a bilateral visit on March 19-20 last year, weeks after Russia invaded Ukraine.

Kishida's visit comes at a time when India is set to host the G20 summit in September this year - he is expected to come to Delhi again then. Officials said Kishida will also take the opportunity to invite Prime Minister Narendra Modi to attend the G-7 leaders' summit in Hiroshima in May this year, as a guest country.

He is likely to brief Modi on the new plan to promote a free and open Indo-Pacific, a Japan-led initiative aimed at curbing China's growing regional assertiveness, that is designed to maintain a rules-based international order.

The action plan emphasises Japan's commitment to the Global South and deepens bilateral ties.

It will likely include bolstering development cooperation for emerging and developing economies in the Global South and strengthening the security capabilities of partner countries, according to officials.

In June last year, Kishida had said in Singapore that Japan would compile a new Indo-Pacific action plan.

Since both Japan and India are members of the Quad grouping along with the US and Australia, the two leaders will also take the opportunity to discuss the importance of working together bilaterally as well, officials said.

They will also meet for the Quad leaders' in Australia in May this year.

The Indo-Pacific concept was first proposed by then Japanese PM Shinzo Abe, during his visit to India in 2007, when he delivered "The Confluence of Two Seas" speech in Parliament.

Abe was invited as chief guest at the Republic Day celebrations in 2014, and conferred the Padma Vibhushan in 2021 for his contribution to India-Japan ties.

After Abe was assassinated last year, Modi went to Japan to attend his state funeral.

Andhra Budget grants lion's share for welfare

KEEPING ITS INTERESTS in mind ahead of the Assembly elections scheduled for 2024, the Andhra Pradesh government has allocated the lion's share of the state Budget - more than ₹54,000 crore of the total ₹2,79,279 crore - to Direct Benefit Transfer (DBT) schemes, targeting potential voter segments such as pensioners, farmers, students and women.

Andhra Pradesh has long focused on governance that balances both welfare and development, and its budgetary allocation of as much as ₹54,228 crore for DBT schemes is in keeping with that model. —PTI
